Today most of us have multiple devices that are constantly connected to the internet and are constantly leaking and disclosing information about us – typically without our consent or knowledge.

We allow total strangers to gather anything they want regarding us, our families, our friends, and the friends of our friends - from our location to where and what we buy, our age, political affiliation, sexual preferences, medical information and much more.

You have the ability to take back (some) control, and rein-in most of this drip-drip leakage of your most sensitive and personal information by correctly setting up your applications, devices and/or home network, as well as rethinking the importance of your participation in “Social Networks” i.e., Facebook, Instagram etc.
