Build Your Own Calendar

Microsoft Office online offers an easy way to build your own calendar. You pick your preferred style and platform -- Excel, Word, PowerPoint, Publisher or FrontPage -- and Microsoft creates the calendar.

These aren't the cheesy-looking giveaways hanging in garages, either. Go with Microsoft's photos or insert your own for a personalized effect. You can choose from business, personal or student layouts.

Pick Your Own Poison

Where you live Do you ever wonder what's in your air or water? Go to the Environmental Protection Agency online to find out more.

Just type in your ZIP code and pick your poison -- Envirofacts, Watershed or UV Index. You'll get back a profile. Pollution is sneaky. The EnviroMapper is interesting. It lets you zoom in on toxic air, hazardous waste and other byproducts of big-city living. You can also customize the map by choosing elements like streams and schools.

Senior Discounts

There's gold in those senior moments If you're over 50, you've probably pitched in to help others most of your life. Isn't it time someone pitched in for you? At Senior Discounts, you can "Find the Gold in the Golden Years."

Get reduced rates on entertainment, shopping, travel and everyday services. Go to the site and pop in your city or ZIP code. Out pours a pile of senior discounts in 22 categories. This is better than Vegas.

Details include the name and address of the business, the amount of the discount and the minimum age required. Yes, you may be too young for some things. But isn't that nice for a change?

Old Radio Shows

You can listen to great comedy teams like Abbott and Costello or listen to a mystery solved by Ellery Queen. Some shows have multiple episodes, so you're in for a real treat!

It may take a few minutes to download the show but it's well worth the listen and it's all completely free!
