

Surf 'N Stuff 'N Tips

Find Album Art

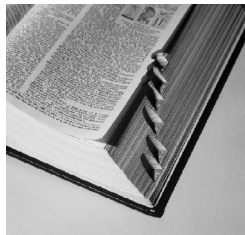

Digital music is amazing. You can carry around thousands of songs in your pocket and flip through them easily. You don't need to worry about scratched discs. And you won't have stacks of CDs that you need to store.

But there is one drawback: You don't always get the album cover. Call me old-fashioned, but I like to look at the covers. That's why I use FindMyCover. Just enter the name of an artist or album, and it finds the cover for you. Then you can download it and add it to your computer's music library. It rocks!

Open Dictionary

Call me a nerd, but I love learning new words. It is so much fun finding a new way to express a thought.

So I'm glad I found Merriam-Webster's Open Dictionary. It truly is an extounding site! If you know a word that isn't in the dictionary, you can add it to this one.

But I visit the site to browse the definitions. Some are fun, and others are enlightening. And there are entries are implausible. But it casts light on the way people invent new words in the course of conversation.

Be forewarned: You may find some of these words creeping into your vocabulary. So be prepared to explain them. For example, I'll probably get a flurry of messages because I used the word "extounding." If you want to know what that means, look it up in Open Dictionary.

Fantastic Photos

The National Wildlife Federation has just announced the winners of its annual photo contest. It is now in its 35th year.

As you would expect, the winning photographs are amazing. If you're a photo buff, you'll want to check them out. Or, if you simply love wildlife, you'd do well to pay today's Cool Site a visit.

There are only a handful of winners. But you'll want to see more. In that case, click on the Photo Zone link at the top of the page. You'll be able to see contest winners from previous years.

The photos will probably inspire you; they did me.

The Best Seat in the House

Frequent travelers know all the tricks. They know which planes have the most room, and which ones have plugs for laptops. Above all else, they know how to pick a good seat. If you're an infrequent traveler, you don't have to put up with a bad seat. You just need to do a little research to help you out.

So, visit SeatGuru before your next trip. Select the airline and the type of plane. You'll get a floor plan showing all the seats on board. They're coded to show you which are best and which are the worst. Plus, you'll get a brief description explaining why.

There's more to SeatGuru than information about the seating. You'll also find details on in-flight entertainment and power ports.
