LABEL ME "ORGANIZED"

If you need to be organized at home and/or at work today's site is helpful.

The Home and Garden Television folks have templates online you can use to print labels. Open the PDF file, load your printer with paper--heavy stock or adhesive, if it can handle it--and bingo, labels.

These are professional looking labels in a variety of styles.

They're just in time for spring cleaning!

STOCK TICKER

Tracking your stocks: like to keep an eye on the stock market?

StockMat offers a free stock ticker that runs on your desktop. Quotes are delayed 15 minutes, but you can set price alerts. It will even give daily stock charts.

When you're downloading the stock ticker, check out Eye on the Market.

Click CBS Radio Report. Here you can get tips on stocks worth researching. And, you can start by linking directly to CBS business reports' audio clips.

Unfortunately, the stock ticker requires an always-on connection.

But everyone can hear the advice!

UN-CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Not all the news fit to print You're probably aware of the New York Times slogan, "All the news that's fit to print." Well, something is missing at prognosticate.com, where you need to predict the news.

This game site is for the more cerebral. Here is how it works:

You pick your favorite news topic. The story is typed up on your screen. When it stops, you predict the next word.

But don't stop--there are 20 missing words in each story! Have fun!

DUMB and DUMBER LAWS

Have you ever read a news item about an arrest that had you thinking, "Huh?"

Yes, we do have some silly laws in this country. Right here in my home state of California,

"No vehicle without a driver may exceed 60 miles per hour".

If you want to find out why, check out this site. Your own state may have a gem of its own.

Some laws are funny, some laws are tragic but all of them at Dumb Laws are fascinating.
