

SURF 'N STUFF 'N TIPS

AERIAL IMAGERY

As you might imagine, Microsoft has a full research and development facility. At today's site, you can get a sneak peak at the mapping service that the company is working on. Microsoft TerraService offers high resolution USGS aerial imagery and USGS topographic maps.

You can locate imagery by clicking on the map, entering a city or town name in the "Search TerraServer" form at the top of the page, or entering a U.S. street address. Another way to see the images is to just keep zooming in on the U.S. map.

TO VISIT THIS SITE, GO HERE: <http://terraservice.net/>

PICK A SEAT

Next time you fly, pick a seat--a good seat. If you haven't had a bad seat on an airline, you haven't really traveled. We all know the cheaper they get, the worse they are.

But what's the inside scoop? Is an exit row seat roomier than one in front of the lavatory? How much wider is an America West airbus seat than a Spirit MD80?

SeatGuru gives you the nitty-gritty on airline seating. Floor plans of specific jets are on display so you can evaluate seat placement and dimensions. And traveler's reviews give a real-world perspective of specific seating.

Now, if you could only pick the person seated next to you!

TO VISIT THIS SITE, GO HERE:

<http://www.seatguru.com>

BLUE ANGELS

If you are interested in seeing some photos of the Blue Angels and some nice scenery, click the link below.

Viewing the pictures requires Adobe Acrobat Reader or other software that can open Adobe PDF files.

<http://www.87th-s-and-d.org/Air%20Support.pdf>

PHOTOS FOR FLIGHT BUFFS

The folks at Airliners say it is the biggest and most visited aviation site on the Internet.

Some 700,000 photographs of airplanes, jets and other airborne devices are viewable.

If you yearn to reminisce, the forum provides a way to find others with similar interests. The site also features aviation news, data and history. It even offers a travel section.

If it has been awhile since you have seen a Hawker Hurricane, don't miss this site.

TO VISIT THIS SITE, GO HERE:

<http://snipurl.com/d8bj>

Las Vegas on the Cheap

In Phoenix, there used to be a restaurant called "Chuck's Ninety-fiver." Any full meal in the house was 95 cents, including drink.

If this sounds like your kind of action, you'll love the Cheapo Vegas Web site.

Let Casino Boy guide you through the maze of Las Vegas hotels and casinos. Click "Las Vegas on 25 cents a day" or study a map of "Dingy Old Downtown." Or compare buffets and find games with the lowest limits.

Live life small at Cheapo Vegas!

TO VISIT THIS SITE, GO HERE:

<http://www.cheapovegas.com/index.php>